MONDAY EVENING DEC. 30, 1907

Ship Worn Goods.

It was a hot afternoon, and Mrs. Perkins, who had taken the children, seven in number, to "the greatest show on earth," felt the heat and was otherwise much distressed. "What's the nationality of them?" she demanded of one of the guards, pointing to the elephants.

"Those are from Africa," replied the man, and Mrs. Perkins looked dubiously at the great animals to the guard and back again to the elephants.

"They appear dreadful light colored to have come from Africa, seem to me," she remarked, "and that giraffe's neck ain't what I expected for length, either, and there's only one double humped among the camels, and the half's all rubbed off him in spots. I reckon this isn't the first show he's been in by a good deal."

She detached the youngest Perkins from the monkey's cage and turned again to the attendant.

"You tell the manager of this show from me," she commanded, "that I shan't pay 50 cents for myself and 17.5 for this mess of children another year to see light colored elephants and a giraffe and a kangaroo with short necks and legs and a posy of single humpers, with only one double humped, and him secondhand!"

"You tell him that from Mrs. Philander Perkins, and tell him I mean it too!"—Youth's Companion.

A Terrible Situation.

There can be few more terrible discoveries than that the man in your company has suddenly gone mad and that you cannot escape him. That was the position of an old lady and her female companion when, just as their train was gliding out of a London terminus, a man popped into the carriage and banged the door after him.

The first stop was eighty miles away, and it seemed as far as eternity when the man produced from his pocket a number of razors and began to cut up an orange. The old lady gave her fur bona an extra twist about her throat. "Do you like orange?" said the maniac as he stuck a piece on the end of a razor and popped it into her mouth. She accepted the gift with thanks, and he was anxious to feed her with more.

She assured him that she liked to eat her orange slowly and made it last. She had to make each portion given to her on the razor last her so long that there was still a piece or two left when the first stoppage and rescue came.—St. James' Gazette.

English in Switzerland.

At a certain hotel in a lovely Alpine resort to which many English visitors were attracted a new proprietor, desiring to cater for such, had this notice, of his own composition, exhibited in the reception room:

"Gentlemen who come in this hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going to breakfast or dinner, or if they say that they not have anything to eat they will be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager, and should they want not to say anything, they must order the manager for, and not any one else, and unless they not bring it to the notice of the manager they will be charged for the late things not, according to hotel rate. And no fuss will be allowed afterward about it, and nothing will be allowed to deduct anything out of it."

Fiddle and Grow Hair.

It is now a scientifically proved fact that music exercises a great influence on the growth of the hair. It is with good reason that great musicians, such as Paganini, Liszt and Paderewski, are represented with a growth of hair which Alsatian might have envied. Science has proved that stringed instruments have a favorable influence on the growth of the hair, while brass instruments act in the opposite direction. Every one has probably observed that a bald violinist is as rare as a bald horn player is common. Wood instruments, such as the flute, seem to have no pronounced influence either way.—Paris Menestrel.

His Wife's Advice.

Mr. William Treloar told me once of the nervousness he felt on the very first occasion when he acted as a chairman. He was on tenterhooks lest he should do anything malapropos and consulted his wife as to how he should act. "I do not know what a chairman's duties are, but if I were invited to take the chair I think I should sit in it," was Lady Treloar's reply, and this advice the Knight of Lodgegate Hill rigidly followed.—London P. T. O.

Seasoned.

Auntie-I notice your dolly doesn't cry "Mamma" when she is squeezed now. She did when I bought her for you.

Niece-No, auntie; but you forget this is her second season out.—London Opinion.

No Such Luck.

"And do you sell these beautiful thoughts of your soul for mere dollars?" she exclaimed.

"Nope," said the poet sorrowfully, "I seldom get more than 50 cents for 'em!"—Cleveland Leader.

Tit For Tat.

"Jane," floated downward a voice, "if that is Mrs. So-and-so, I'm not in."

"It is Mrs. So-and-so," floated upward a voice, "and she's glad to hear it!"—Kansas City Journal.

The Depth of Beauty.

The skin of the hippopotamus is said to be more than three inches thick. This is one of the cases where beauty isn't skin deep.—Boston Globe.

A Significant Prayer.

"My Lord help me make Bucken's Arnica Salve known to all," writes J. G. Jenkins, of Chapel Hill, N. C. It quickly took the pain out of a felon for me and cured it in a wonderfully short time. Best on earth for sores, burns and wounds. 25c at all drug stores.
